85	C1958 NUFFIELD FOUR DIESEL TRACTOR (OFFSITE) C 1958 NUFFIELD UNIVERSAL FOUR BMC DIESEL TRACTOR MODEL: 4DM SERIAL No: 11386 The Nuffield Universal was a tractor produced from 1948 by the Agricultural Division of Morris Motors, later a subsidiary of The British Motor Corporation Limited. When William Morris the founder of Morris Motors was honoured with a title and elevated to the peerage, he chose the name of his Nuffield, Oxfordshire village. When in 1948 the Morris Motors Agricultural Division launched its tractor range, the name Nuffield was chosen to be the brand name for the company's agricultural products. The design was similar to the new David Brown built tractors as the designer Dr. Merit had also worked on the design of the David Brown 50D before moving to Nuffield. Serial numbers from August 1958 started at DM4792-1080 so we estimate this tractor to be a late 1958 production. This 45 h.p. BMC diesel powered example presents in original running condition (note footage). Features include; front and rear light side PTO draw bar 3-point linkage hour meter reading 6,765 roll over bar (NOTE - VIEWING BY APPOINTMENT ON SATURDAY 16th NOVEMBER ONSITE IN THE GREATER GEELONG REGION, PLEASE CONTACT ROBBIE 0419 393 932 FOR MORE INFORMATION) Est. 3,000 - 4,000

Fitted with the 498cc air cooled twin which produced 28hp and a resulted top speed of 90mph. The 5T had a long and successful production life (with a break from 40-47 due to WWII) with several revisions made until the end of production in 1966. This Triumph has a magnificent history. Shortly after being sold in 1939 the bike was called to war and the government came to collect the bike under the compulsory acquisition program. Unwilling to part with the bike, the then owner dismantled the bike, wrapped it in grease paper and buried it under a market garden in Wheelers Hill, Victoria, where it remained until the conclusion of the war in 1945. The bike was brought back to the surface, reassembled and sold in 1946 to William Horner, the father of the current owner. William was a very active member in the vintage motorcycle community and restored the bike in the 1980's. A wonderful story and an incredible motorcycle. Sold with Dusting Side car with aero screen. 89	C1951 ROYAL ENFIELD BULLET 350cc MOTORCYCLE C1951 ROYAL ENFIELD BULLET 350CC SINGLE MOTORCYCLE FRAME NO: G2 / 1951 ENGINE NO: G2 / 1951 The Royal Enfield Bullet is a British overhead valve single cylinder four stroke motorcycle made by Royal Enfield in Redditch West Midlands. The Royal Enfield Bullet has the longest production run of any motorcycle and has been continuously produced since 1948. The Royal Enfield and Bullet name was derived from the company's links with the Royal Small Arms Factory in Enfield, London. Several changes were implemented from 1949 in order to bring the bike up to date. This included a vertical engine with alloy head and a higher compression. A new fully sprung design using a swing arm with nonadjustable hydraulic shocks at the rear, while the front used an all-new designed telescopic fork. Power transmission was via the same four speed Albion gearbox as the previous model, with a unique 'neutral finder' lever the rider could press from any gear other than first to shift back neutral. An otherwise similar model, but with engine displacement of 499 cc, made its debut in 1953. This Bullet presents in good condition having been a display piece for the past 6 years. 90	C1949 ARIEL RED HUNTER 500cc MOTORCYCLE C1949 ARIEL RED HUNTER 500CC SINGLE MOTORCYCLE FRAME NO: AS892 ENGINE NO: EJ 1418 The Ariel Red Hunter was the name used for a range of Ariel Single Cylinder Motorcycles, designed by Val Page in 1932. The Red Hunter proved a success and formed the backbone of the company, this success enabled Ariel to purchase Triumph. The 500 could accelerate from 0 to 60 miles per hour in 10.9 seconds, when production was recommenced after the Second World War, telescopic forks and alloy cylinder head were added. The following year this model could be ordered with the optional Anstey Link plunger rear suspension, the primary drive used a single row chain, with a spring type shock absorber built into the crankshaft sprocket to reduce abruptness and consequent stretch on the chain which was previously always a concern. A dry clutch passed power through a four speed Burman gear box. The frame was pre-war in style, with a single down tube from the steering head, connecting with two tubes that cradled the engine. After World War II, the Red Hunter became Ariel's best-selling motorcycle, with numerous successes in trials as well as scrambles and road-racing. This Ariel Red Hunter presents in good condition having been a display piece for the past 6 years. Est. 13,000 - 15,000

This bike featured the formidable Honda liquid cooled four-cylinder 599cc engine achieving 110.00bhp, fed through a 6-speed gearbox and the updated and "Ultima light" Aluminium twin spar frame. The beefed-up specs saw this bike capable of going 0-100 km/h in 2.3 seconds and a top speed of 290 km/h. This bike was last registered and used in 2010 and has been in storage since. With a little work it would represent a great platform for some thrilling track days at the island. Est. 2,000 - 3,000

Only 100 750 SS's were manufactured for 1977 and many of those were raced and have since disappeared or sadly, been parted out. Because the original price of the 750 Super Sport was very similar to 900, relatively few 750s were produced with many of them being shipped to Australia, Germany or staying in Italy for racing applications. This Australian Delivered bike is a great example of a rarely seen Italian super bike. Est. 67,000 - 72,000

Designed to compete with the Triumph and Norton's of the period, the bike was marketed as "undoubtedly the world's greatest motorcycle" upon release. The A-10 was the top of the BSA line at the time and proved a very successful bike both on and off the track. The 646cc air-cooled twin produced 35-40 horsepower and a top speed of 109 miles per hour. It had a TT9 carb, aluminium cylinder heads, and a four-speed gearbox. The Super Rocket replaced it in 1957. This bike was until recently fully registered in Victoria. Est. 7,000 - 10,000

95	1961 TRIUMPH TWENTY-ONE 350cc MOTORCYCLE 1961 TRIUMPH TWENTY-ONE 350CC TWIN MOTORCYCLEENGINE NO: 3TA H22024In 1957 Triumph re-entered the "middleweight" 350 class with the launch of the model Twenty-One (3TA). The bike was Triumphs first use of the unit construction design, utilising the 350cc (or 21 cubic inches, hence the name) air cooled, OHV twin 4 stroke twin with a 4 speed transmission. The Twenty-One motorcycle was easily identified by its large 'bathtub' rear bodywork, a feature added to streamline the design and lessen the amount of road grit subjected to riders on a damp day. Many riders generally found the appearance to be unappealing and mechanics also found the removal of the body work to be cumbersome, hence many removed or modified the rear section. Produced between 1957 to 1966 the twenty-One proved to be a popular and well used motorcycle.This Twenty-One comes complete with rear "bathtub" body work and would make a great restoration project. 96	1948 VELOCETTE LE 149cc MOTORCYCLE (UNRESERVED) 1948 VELOCETTE LE 149CC FLAT-TWIN MOTORCYCLE-Unreserved-FRAME NO: 3238 (on detached plaque)The Velocette LE (little engine) was intended to be the "motorcycle for everyman" and was launched at the British International Motor Show in 1948. Spurred on by the company's director Eugene Goodman, designer Charles Udall looked to create a motorcycle that would address many of the issues often associated with 2 wheeled transport. The LE featured a radical pressed steel frame design, hand operated gearchange, coil ignition, hand crank and a great effort was spent on on strategic placement of rubber to damp vibrations and soundproofing, creating one of the quietest bikes ever produced. The bike was powered by a 149cc water-cooled flat twin with shaft drive. A glove box and detachable panniers made the bike practical as well, but the unusual looks, high price and the relative strength of the new scooter market meant sales failed to live up to expectations. The LE did however find success with law enforcement forces where it gained the nickname 'Noddy Bike' as a result. This bike presents in barn find condition and would make a great display piece. A Classic Motorcycle story from January 1994 stated: "In a production run from 1950 to 1964 Triumph turned out 15,939 machines. Some reached other arms of the British services, but the vast majority were exported."Using a TR5T Trophy competition chassis, the 500cc side-valve twin was assembled from cycle parts already in civilian production. This kept production costs down and the assembly lines flowing. A little over spec at 320 pounds, from 1953, it was competitive and, for military duty, was something of a pleasure to ride, still is today. Not being a country to give up on traditions, the British Army Royal Corps of Signals finally abandoned the TRW in 1969. This 1954 Triumph TRW 500 for sale has a 500cc engine with single carb and has been restored in recent years and the odometer displays 2 miles covered presumably since restoration.
